The Debbie Friedman School of Sacred Music Sound Archive

RELEASE

HUC-JIR is creating an on-line sound archive which will only be accessible via a membership website. The website, accessible only to students, faculty, and alumni of HUC-JIR, will allow us to share past and future practica and recital recordings made by the student body. Our objective is to help enrich the modern cantorate by providing this invaluable resource for colleagues to learn new Jewish music, new uses for Jewish music, and new interpretations. The music will only be accessible through the website and will not be available via download. All precautions have been taken to ensure that publishers' copyrights are preserved.

We need your permission to use recordings of your previous practica and senior recital in order to add it to our growing sound archive. Even with this permission, the administration of HUC-JIR reserves the right to make all final decisions as to what will be posted to the sound archive. If you used accompaniment during these recordings, accompanists who are on faculty have already granted their permission. The same stands for faculty who have sung as soloist or chorus member. Please make an effort to get permission from outside accompanist and choristers.

 Name: _____

 Years attending HUC-JIR: _____

By signing below, I agree to allow HUC-JIR to use recordings of my previously recorded practica and senior recital as articulated above. I do so in concert with the religious and educational mission of HUC-JIR. I also agree to allow HUC-JIR to use recordings of me as part of any other student's practicum or recital, whether I was soloist, choir member, or instrumentalist. I will use my best efforts to get express permission from any outside accompanists or choristers who performed with me to use these recordings.

I also agree not to share my log-in information to the sound archive with anyone, as I realize that this is an educational website solely for the HUC-JIR community and not for personal use.
