The Surge of Anti-Semitism in Europe: A European Perspective

WITH

Simone Rodan-Benzaquen  AND  Dr. Philipp Ackermann
Director, AJC Paris  Minister and Deputy Chief Mission of the German Embassy

MODERATED BY

Rabbi Jonathan Cohen, PhD
Dean, Hebrew Union College-Jewish Institute of Religion, Cincinnati campus

THURSDAY, JUNE 11, 2015

1 p.m.
Church Christ Cathedral
318 East Fourth Street
Cincinnati, 45202

FREE and open to the public: RSVP at ajccincinnati.org/Europe or 513.621.4020. Space is limited

Simone Rodan-Benzaquen
As Director AJC Paris, Simone Rodan-Benzaquen interacts regularly with government officials, civil society leaders, journalists and policy analysts and works closely with the leadership of the French Jewish community to combat anti-Semitism, promote understanding of the Middle East, and stimulate dialogue among ethnic and religious groups. Before Simone was named Director of AJC Paris, she served as an adviser to the Ambassador for Human Rights in the French Ministry of Foreign and European Affairs. She was the founding General Secretary of the Brussels and Paris-based Medbridge Strategy Center. She holds a law degree from King’s College, a M.SC in Media and Communications from the London School of Economics and a secondary Masters from Sciences Po Paris.

Dr. Philipp Ackermann
Dr. Philipp Ackermann joined the German Foreign Service after he received a Ph.D. in art history from Bonn University. He currently serves as the Minister and Deputy Chief Mission of the German Embassy in Washington, DC. Previously he headed the Task Force Afghanistan/Pakistan for the German Foreign Office in Berlin. Among other appointments, Dr. Ackermann has served at the German Embassy in Rabat, Morocco, at the Permanent Mission of Germany to the United Nations in New York, and became the principal speechwriter to former Foreign Minister Joschka Fischer and Foreign Minister Frank-Walter Steinmeier from 2002 to 2006. Dr. Ackermann accepted a civilian assignment as head of the German PRT in Kunduz, Afghanistan, from 2006 to 2007, and later oversaw the Political Department of the German Embassy in New Delhi, India, from 2007 to 2010.

Rabbi Jonathan Cohen, PhD
Dr. Jonathan Cohen, an Israeli-born scholar, is the Dean, Hebrew Union College-Jewish Institute of Religion, Cincinnati campus. Dr. Cohen’s interests include history of law, law and religion, and, in particular, the evolution of Jewish law in Christian Europe. He read law at the University of Kent, Canterbury, and earned his Ph.D. (Law) from the University of Liverpool.